FEATURES

20 THE STUDIO IN THE CITY

An essential part of any maker's or designer's practice, the urban studio is seemingly under threat. Sandra Kaji-O'Grady champions the value of such studios within Australia's current cultural and economic climates and reminds us why they are such necessary places of creativity and production.

35 YOUR STUDIO, YOUR HOME GROUND

What do you imagine a day in the life of a studio artist would be like? Moya Costello walks in their shoes, sits at their desk and contemplates the possibilities.

STUDIOS

08 MANISH ARORA

Meet the man whom some are calling 'India's Christian Lacroix'. Alice Cicolini introduces us to the seemingly limitless talents of New Delhi-based fashion designer, Manish Arora, and his 'trademark dramatic fluro-tribal' garments.

16 LYNDA WARNER

The Tasmanian studio of Lynda Warner looks out 'over the end of the world' giving her a creative perspective that she considers 'sharper and clearer'. Stephen Goddard talks to a graphic designer who has immersed herself in her surrounding landscape.

24 MATERIALBYPRODUCT

Imagine a little wooden house with between three to 12 people squeezed into its front two rooms and you have the engine room of Melbourne-based Susan Dimasi and Chantal McDonald's inspired fashion label, MATERIALBYPRODUCT. Kate Rhodes finds out what is at the core of MBP's craft.

30 MOKUM

Leanne Amodeo visits the Sydney textile design studio of Mokum and meets with designers Cathy Brown, Bethany Linz and Tandarra Rothman, who reveal the process behind their widely coveted fabrics.

38 MARC PETROVIC

For someone who never planned to be a glassmaker, US-based Marc Petrovic's output is prodigious. Shannon Sharpe meets with a maker whose dedicated practice combines the beauty of his material with the highly conceptual ideas surrounding its presentation.

42 SARA CARONE

Adelia Borges invites us into the studio of Sara Carone, a Brazilian ceramicist who works in the traditional Japanese technique of Raku.

46 MOWANJUM ART AND CULTURE CENTRE

From the air, the Mowanjum Art and Culture Centre resembles a giant Wandjina, the creation spirits of the three tribes that inhabit the Mowanjum community. Maya Haviland takes us through the newly opened gallery and studio, a 'sophisticated act of contemporary cultural transmission'.

50 ALAN PRESTON

The work of Alan Preston has been widely celebrated and now we have the opportunity to become emerged in the ordered chaos of his studio. Brian Parkes explores this extraordinary place of creativity in the context of New Zealand's influential jewellery scene.
